Light up!

Rameder's cordless LED garage lamp for pros and amateurs

"More light!" were Goethe's supposed famous last words, and many a pro or amateur has indeed needed it when the cable of their lamp turned out to be too short to reach into the engine compartment. A torch pressed between shoulder and neck isn't really good for either and means assuming an awkward position. But don't despair: Rameder's cordless battery-powered LED is now available for only EUR 34.99. Check it out at www.rameder.eu.

This convenient lamp is ideal for both pros and amateurs or as an ever-present helper in case of a breakdown. It features an effective splash-water protection and an integrated hook to hang it on, say, the raised bonnet. Its 1,800 mAh battery will run for up to seven hours and can be charged anywhere, including your car's cigarette lighter (jack and pack are included). And should you need a spotlight to inspect your engine compartment, turn off the 27 LED floods mode and use the 9 LED torch mode. Or, to quote Goethe again: "Knowing is not enough; we must apply".
